

How well do you know the Catholic faith? Well, let's find out..."

Does the Church say something about the duties of a citizen towards the State? What duties do citizens have towards the State?

A) The Church teaches us that we do not have any duties to the State, even more the State is kind of an enemy for us.

B) Every citizen has the duty to cooperate with the civil authorities and to contribute to the common good in truth, justice, freedom and solidarity. (CCC 2238- 2246). A Christian, too, should love his homeland, defend it in various ways in time of need, and gladly offer to serve civil institutions. He should exercise the right to vote and even run for office and not shirk the duty to pay just taxes. Nevertheless, within the State the individual citizen remains a free man with fundamental rights; he has the right to offer constructive criticism of the State and its organs. The State is there for the people, not the individual for the State.

C) The Church and the State is one. The Church and the State cooperate closely.

How well do you know the Catholic faith? Well, let's find out..."

When must we refuse to obey the State?

A) We are obligated by the Bible to obey the State regardless of the Church's point of view.

B) No one may follow orders from the State that violates God's laws.

C) We do not have follow any State's law.

How well do you know the Catholic faith? Well, let's find out..."

When must we refuse to obey the State?

- A) We are obligated by the Bible to obey the State regardless of the Church's point of view.
- B) No one may follow orders from the State that violates God's laws.
- C) We do not have follow any State's law.

How well do you know the Catholic faith? Well, let's find out..."

Does the Church say something about the duties of a citizen towards the State? What duties do citizens have towards the State?

- A) The Church teaches us that we do not have any duties to the State, even more the State is kind of an enemy for us.
- B) Every citizen has the duty to cooperate with the civil authorities and to contribute to the common good in truth, justice, freedom and solidarity. (CCC 2238- 2246). A Christian, too, should love his homeland, defend it in various ways in time of need, and gladly offer to serve civil institutions. He should exercise the right to vote and even run for office and not shirk the duty to pay just taxes. Nevertheless, within the State the individual citizen remains a free man with fundamental rights; he has the right to offer constructive criticism of the State and its organs. The State is there for the people, not the individual for the State.
- C) The Church and the State is one. The Church and the State cooperate closely.