

How well do you know the Catholic faith? Well, let's find out..."

Once, we were talking about death and dying and my question is: How do Christians assist somebody who is dying?

- A) Christians do not leave a dying person alone. They help him so that he can die in faith-filled trust, in dignity and peace. They pray with him and take care that the sacraments are administered to him at the right time.
- B) Assisting somebody who is dying is not the role of Christians but the role of Government.
- C) Christians have obligation only to assist their closest family.

How well do you know the Catholic faith? Well, let's find out..."

My question is about organ donation. Is organ donation important?

- A) Donating organs can lengthen life or improve the quality of life, and therefore it is a genuine service to one's neighbour, organ donation can be forced on somebody.
- B) Donating organs can lengthen life or improve the quality of life, and therefore it is a genuine service to one's neighbour, provided no one is forced to do it. (CCC 2296) It must be certain that the donor during his lifetime gave his free and deliberate consent and that he was not killed for the purpose of removing the organ(s). Donation by living donors is also possible, for example in bone marrow transplants or in the donation of one kidney. Organ donation from a cadaver presupposes certain determination of death and the consent of the donor during his lifetime or else of his representative.
- C) Donating organs is not permissible in any form or shape in the Catholic Church.

How well do you know the Catholic faith? Well, let's find out..."

My question is about organ donation. Is organ donation important?

A) Donating organs can lengthen life or improve the quality of life, and therefore it is a genuine service to one's neighbour, organ donation can be forced on somebody.

B) Donating organs can lengthen life or improve the quality of life, and therefore it is a genuine service to one's neighbour, provided no one is forced to do it. (CCC 2296) It must be certain that the donor during his lifetime gave his free and deliberate consent and that he was not killed for the purpose of removing the organ(s). Donation by living donors is also possible, for example in bone marrow transplants or in the donation of one kidney. Organ donation from a cadaver presupposes certain determination of death and the consent of the donor during his lifetime or else of his representative.

C) Donating organs is not permissible in any form or shape in the Catholic Church.

How well do you know the Catholic faith? Well, let's find out..."

Once, we were talking about death and dying and my question is: How do Christians assist somebody who is dying?

A) Christians do not leave a dying person alone. They help him so that he can die in faith-filled trust, in dignity and peace. They pray with him and take care that the sacraments are administered to him at the right time.

B) Assisting somebody who is dying is not the role of Christians but the role of Government.

C) Christians have obligation only to assist their closest family.