

How well do you know the Catholic faith? Well, let's find out..."

This is a very interesting question. What does the Church say about this? What is the Church's judgment on surrogate motherhood and artificial insemination?

A) All assistance in conceiving a child through research and medicine must stop when the common bond of parenthood's loosened and destroyed by the intrusion of a third person or when conception becomes a technological act outside of sexual union in marriage. Out of respect for human dignity, the Church cannot approve of the technologically assisted conception of a child through artificial insemination or fertilization.

B) The Church doesn't have any statement about this topics.

C) Pope Francis wants to change the teaching of the Church about these topics.

How well do you know the Catholic faith? Well, let's find out..."

This is another question from my teenage daughter. What can a childless couple do?

A) Married couples who suffer from infertility can accept medical assistance that does not contradict the dignity of the human person, the rights of the child to be conceived, and the holiness of the sacrament of marriage. (CCC 2375, 2379)

There is no absolute right to have a child. Every child is a gift from God. Married couples to whom this gift has been denied, even though they have exhausted all permissible medical means of assistance, can take in foster children or adopt children or become socially involved in some other way, for instance, by caring for abandoned children.

B) They can use any method suggested by the doctor.

C) They should go and try to find another spouse. They don't have to be together anymore.

How well do you know the Catholic faith? Well, let's find out..."

This is another question from my teenage daughter. What can a childless couple do?

A) Married couples who suffer from infertility can accept medical assistance that does not contradict the dignity of the human person, the rights of the child to be conceived, and the holiness of the sacrament of marriage. . (CCC 2375, 2379)

There is no absolute right to have a child. Every child is a gift from God. Married couples to whom this gift has been denied, even though they have exhausted all permissible medical means of assistance, can take in foster children or adopt children or become socially involved in some other way, for instance, by caring for abandoned children.

B) They can use any method suggested by the doctor.

C) They should go and try to find another spouse. They don't have to be together anymore.

How well do you know the Catholic faith? Well, let's find out..."

This is a very interesting question. What does the Church say about this? What is the Church's judgment on surrogate motherhood and artificial insemination?

A) All assistance in conceiving a child through research and medicine must stop when the common bond of parenthood's loosened and destroyed by the intrusion of a third person or when conception becomes a technological act outside of sexual union in marriage. Out of respect for human dignity, the Church cannot approve of the technologically assisted conception of a child through artificial insemination or fertilization.

B) The Church doesn't have any statement about this topics.

C) Pope Francis wants to change the teaching of the Church about these topics.