I have heard somewhere about the terminology commutative justice. What is meant by commutative justice?

- A) Commutative justice regulates exchanges between persons some of the goods.
- B) The Church doesn't use this kind of terminology.
- C) Commutative justice regulates exchanges between persons in accordance with a strict respect for their rights. It makes sure that property rights are safeguarded, debts repaid, and freely contracted obligations are fulfilled, that reparation is made for injustice or damage, and that stolen goods are returned. (CCC 2411-2412)

Slowly tax season starts. May question is: Is it permissible to use tax dodges?

- A) Inventiveness in dealing with complex systems of taxation is morally unobjectionable. It is immoral to evade taxes or to commit tax fraud, in other words, to falsify, fail to report, or conceal facts so as to prevent a correct assessment of taxes due.
- B) It is not permissible to use tax dodges. We need to pay whatever we are taxed, even if it was a mistake. This is just just.
- C) The Church doesn't want to talk about it.
